SUCCESS ZR-3 RECALLS FATE OF OTHER SHIP

Is Fourth Attempt of Humans to Cross Atlantic via Air

BULLETIN.
Washington, Oct. 15.—Approximately $2,000,000 will be credited as a German reparation payment to the United States when the ZR-3 is formally accepted by this government.

BULLETIN.
Washington, Oct. 15.—An official world record for non-stop flight by a zeppelin was set by a new scouting plane at Anasofta today, the plane remaining in the air 20 hours 10 minutes and ten seconds against the old time of 14 hours, 53 minutes and 14 seconds.

Lakehurst, N. J., Oct. 15.—(By the Associated Press.)—The safe arrival of the ZR-3 from Germany, marks the fourth successful attempt of humans to span the Atlantic Ocean in non-stop flight.

Aeronauts experts of army and navy regard it as the most significant of the most spectacular flight. They declared that the world is witnessing evidence that the dirigible is destined to be the inter-continental passenger ship of the near future.

A British team of Alcock and Brown, both royal flying corps men, took the air at St. John's, N. F., in a "Vickers-Vimy" biplane on June 14, 1919. Sixteen hours and twelve minutes later, having traversed 1,932 miles of sea and fog, they plunged with their aircraft into a bog near Chiden, Ireland.

Hardly had nations ceased to gasp over the audacity of Alcock and Brown when the British dirigible R-34 rose from East Fortune, Scotland, one day in July. She turned her nose toward America and with her went 20 men—one of them a stowaway. After 69 hours the R-34 reached Minnola, Iowa.

A few days later she headed homeward, arriving in England after an uneventful passage.

Subsequent attempts to equal or surpass the cruise of the R-34 ended in tragedy. The R-36, sold by Great Britain to the United States, was consumed by flame and explosion, followed by a disastrous toll of life, on a trial flight under British-American command over Hull, England.

Roma Also Lost "in Air."
A like fate attended the maiden flight of the Roma, acquired by the United States from Italy, set up over here and turned loose upon the air at Aberdeen, Md. Explosion destroyed the craft and a heavy loss of lives marked the second attempt of this country to break into big league aeronautics.

In the third major dirigible disaster since the R-34's flight, France and Frenchmen were the victims. Their proud Dixmude set out one day last year to penetrate into Africa and perished at sea. It is believed lightning ignited her hydrogen.

Negro Murderer is Given Reprieve to January 16
Springfield, Ill., Oct. 15.—(By the Associated Press.)—A reprieve until January 16 was granted Hesse Connors, negro of Cairo, by Governor Small today. Connors was sentenced to hang at Mound City on Friday for the murder of Daisy Wilson, a storekeeper's daughter of Villa Ridge.

Attorneys for Connors represented that he had been of "unsound mind since boyhood" and requested the reprieve to provide time to request a sanity inquiry in the Pulaski County Circuit Court, where he was convicted. Connors shot the girl when surprised while robbing her father's store.

2.—You will receive blank ballot instructions and return envelope. Attach your ballot in presence of notary, subscribe to the required affidavit that you have voted, enclose and seal in return envelope, to be forwarded by registered mail in time to be counted on election day.

ANTI-AMERICAN PROPAGANDA IN JAPANESE PRESS
Officials Plan Protest to Foreign Office on Untrue Tales.

Mukden, Manchuria, Oct. 15.—American officials here, seriously concerned over what is termed "insidious" anti-American propaganda conducted by the Japanese press, are planning a protest to the Japanese foreign office.

According to translations made by the United States consulate, the "Furukawa Nichi Nichi" says this morning: "Certainly America is secretly supplying arms to the Shihlin (Peking government) forces. One hundred and ninety thousand rifles have been furnished already despite existing treaties governing the importation of arms into China."

The "Manchu Nick" says: "American officers are taking part in the battle at Shanhaiwan driving Chinese tanks. Many American soldiers are mixed with the Chinese troops wearing Chinese dress."

As a result of all this propaganda, Americans in Mukden are mistrusted. American newspaper correspondents are treated as spies and followed by Chinese police.

No American newspaperman has been allowed to visit the front yet. Even Captain Norman Baldwin, official United States military observer, has not yet been granted permission to go to the front.

While fighting continued today at Shanhaiwan, the results were not definitely known. Terror reigns in the Chinese sections of Mukden owing to an ever increasing number of front line war reports. Many coolies have fled to the Japanese concessions here.

FATHER OF YOUNG HASSELSON ASKS CRIMINAL ACTION

Swears to Complaint in Which He Charges Mr. Wirth for Death.

Ben Hasselson has started criminal proceedings against Samuel E. Wirth of this city in the court of Justice Grover W. Gehant and a warrant has been issued charging speeding. The action is the outgrowth of the death of Allen Hasselson, son of the plaintiff, who was struck and sustained fatal injuries when he ran in front of an automobile driven by Mr. Wirth at the Third street arch on Thursday of last week.

The accident occurred a few minutes after noon when Mr. Wirth was driving home to lunch. The Hasselson boy was hurrying to the hospital where he died about 7:30 in the evening. Friday morning Coroner Whetstone conducted an inquest over the remains, the jury returning a verdict of accidental death and exonerating the driver of the car. The testimony of witnesses of the inquest was that the Hasselson boy was running away from a party of boy schoolmates and, apparently not observing the approaching car, crossed the street directly in its pathway. Witnesses of the accident testified at the inquest that the car was not exceeding a speed of 15 to 18 miles per hour.

Lincoln is Found Sane: Goes to Trial in Month
Aurora, Ill., Oct. 15.—Warren J. Lincoln, lawyer-forist, who killed his wife and her brother and incensed their heads in a concrete block, was found sane at this time by a jury here last night.

The jury cleared the way for his trial next month on murder charges but did not preclude a defense at the coming trial that he was insane at the time of the killings. Lincoln, throughout the hearing, had objected to his attorney's contention that he was insane.

The jury deliberated an hour and a half before reaching their verdict, taking one ballot, they said. Lay and expert testimony had been brought out during the hearing, some witnesses holding he was normal mentally, now at least, legally sane; others asserting the crime was proof of derangement. Charles Abbott, state's attorney, said he would ask the jury next month for a death penalty verdict. Lincoln's attorney said they would plead insanity.

Second Negro Confesses Part in Killing Old Man
St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 15.—Frank Smith, a negro, confessed, according to the police, last night that he had participated in the killing of W. E. Funkhouser, aged newspaper solicitor of Matteson, Ill., whose body was found in a clump of weeds near Matteson, Oct. 5, six days after he had disappeared.

Smith, according to the police, substantiated the story told by Harvey Davis, another negro, who was arrested Oct. 4, and whose arrest led to the finding of the slain man's body. Smith was to be taken back to Matteson today by Sheriff Harry Riley of Shelbyville, Ill., who came here yesterday and who was present when Smith made his admission.

According to the stories told by the two prisoners they met Funkhouser on a road leading to Matteson, Sept. 30, overpowered the man, robbed him and then beat him to death. They implicated a third negro who is still at large.

Washington, Oct. 15.—Republicans of Iowa were advised today by Chairman Smoot of the finance committee and one of the republican leaders of the senate, to vote against Senator Brookhart, republican nominee, for re-election.

LaFollette "Booed" in Meeting at St. Louis
La Follette Special en route to Des Moines, Ia., Mexico, Mo., Oct. 15.—(By the Associated Press.)—Senator Robert M. LaFollette, independent candidate for president, after two campaign speeches in Missouri, was on his way today to Des Moines, Ia., where, with an address tonight, he will continue his efforts to win votes in the agricultural region.

From the Iowa capital he will go to Minneapolis where he is scheduled to speak tomorrow night and then will invade South Dakota, for a speech Friday night in Sioux Falls.

As Mr. LaFollette's speech towards Des Moines from St. Louis, where last night he criticized the foreign policies of Woodrow Wilson, and of the Harding-Coolidge administrations, was announced he was expected to have Senator Smith Brookhart of Iowa aboard his special car today for an hour or two. Arrangements have been made, it is said, for Brookhart, who is running for re-election as a republican, to be on the train at Moulton, Ia., and ride with an Albia dental candidate as far as Albia.

While the Iowa senator has assailed both President Coolidge and his running mate, Charles G. Dawes, he has not publicly endorsed Mr. LaFollette's candidacy.

Mr. LaFollette's St. Louis meeting became a bit stormy near the end of his address when a group of men and boys seated in the gallery, back of the platform began to "boo" him. Supporters of the senator, however, drowned out the cries with cheers, but the candidate found it so difficult to proceed that he finally asserted that if he only had time, he would go up into the gallery and put a stop to the disorder. Those who caused the disturbance were ejected from the hall as the senator was winding up his speech but not until there had been several fist fights.

Govt Rests on Religion.
"Our government rests upon religion. It is from that source that we derive our reverence for truth and justice, for equality and liberty, and for the rights of mankind. Unless the people believe in these principles they cannot believe in our government. There are only two main theories of government in the world, one rests on righteousness, the other rests on force. One appeals to reason, the other appeals to the sword. One is exemplified in a republic, the other is represented by despotism. The history of government on this earth has been almost entirely a history of the rule of force held in the hands of a few. Under our constitution, America committed itself to the practical application of the rule of reason with the power held in the hands of the people. This result was by no means accomplished at once.

"It came about only by reason of long and difficult preparation, often times accompanied with discouraging failure. The ability for self government is arrived at only through an attend.

SENATOR SMOOT MINCES NOTHING IN HIS REMARKS

Washington, Oct. 15.—Reliance upon religion rather than law for reform was emphasized today by President Coolidge, speaking at the unveiling here of a statue to Francis Ashbury, "pioneer bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church in America."

"We cannot depend upon the government," the President declared, "to do the work of religion. An act of congress may indicate that a reform is being or has been accomplished, but it does not itself bring about a reform. The government of a country never goes ahead of the religion of a country."

The religion was described by the President as the foundation of this government. It is a result of the preaching of Bishop Ashbury, his associates and other religious organizations he declared, that "our country has developed so much freedom."

"It is well to remember this," he added, "when we are seeking for social reforms. Of course, we can help to restrain the vicious and furnish a fair degree of security and protection by legislation and police control, but the real reforms which society in these days is seeking will come as a result of our religious convictions or they will not come at all."

Personal Responsibility.
"We cannot escape a personal responsibility for our own conduct. We cannot regard those as wise or safe counselors in public affairs who deny these principles and seek to support the theory that society can succeed when the individual fails."

"There is no way by which he can substitute the authority of law for the virtue of man. Peace, justice, humanity, charity—these cannot be legislated into being. They are the result of a divine grace."

From the life of Bishop Ashbury, who came to this country as a preacher before the Revolutionary War, the President drew a lesson of morality and devotion which he said "has gone into the making of our country."

He recalled that the pioneer bishop traveled about six thousand miles a year, preaching about 16,000 sermons and receiving as his highest salary $85 a year.

"He had no idea," Mr. Coolidge said, "that he was preparing men the better to take part in a great liberal movement, the better to take advantage of free institutions and the better to perform the functions of self-government. He did not come for political motives. He came to bring the gospel to the people."

Renews Faith in Nation.
"I do not see how anyone could recount the story of this early bishop without feeling a renewed faith in our country. He met a multitude of storms. Many of them caused him sore trials. But he never wavered. He saw wars and heard rumors of war but whatever may have been the surface appearance, underneath it all our country manifested then and has continued to manifest a high courage, a remarkable strength of spirit, an unusual ability, in a crisis to choose the right course. Something has continued to guide the people. No tumult has been loud enough to prevent their hearing, the still small voice. No storm has been violent enough to divert inspired men from constantly carrying the word of Truth. The contests of the day have been preparations for victories on the morrow. Through it all our country has acquired an underlying power, judgment and stability of action which has never failed it. It furnishes its own answer to those who would defame it. It can afford to be oblivious to those who would detract from it. America continues its own way unchallenged and unafraid."

No storm has been violent enough to divert inspired men from constantly carrying the word of Truth. The contests of the day have been preparations for victories on the morrow. Through it all our country has acquired an underlying power, judgment and stability of action which has never failed it. It furnishes its own answer to those who would defame it. It can afford to be oblivious to those who would detract from it. America continues its own way unchallenged and unafraid."

A BABY'S HAND—
I could look all day at a baby's hand
And should never grow tired at all.
Its little wave were a stern command:
I should follow its beck and call.
The dimples for knuckles; the rose-pink nails:
The wrist with the kissable crease—
I guide me along the enchanted trails
That lead to the pastures of peace.

I could look all day at a baby's hand
With always a blur in my eyes;
Each finger to me is a breakable band
To weld me to all that I prize.
And the moist, warm palm with its soft caress
Is rose-petal tender and sweet—
The very quintessence of loveliness:
A masterpiece rare and complete.

I could look all day at a baby's hand
And should never be tired at all.
My heart is a slave to its command,
And my soul at its beck and call.
With dimples for knuckles and pearls for nails:
With wrist just a kissable crease,
It guides me along in the magic trails
That lead to the gardens of peace.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS—
Keep Hats Clean.
After each wearing brush your hat carefully or wipe it free from any dust
it may have accumulated.

Keep From Heat.
If a fur coat or a fur trimmed wrap has been rain-soaked it should be left to dry near an open window, but never subjected to heat.

Water on Grease.
When grease or gravy is spilled on the floor or table, pour cold water over it immediately, ice water if possible, to congeal the fat before it has time
to penetrate the pores of the wood.

Use Warm Knife.
To slice hard-boiled eggs perfectly without crumbling use a knife dipped in boiling water and wiped dry. Repeat as often as it cools.

Use Bacon Fat.
Bacon fat is better than lard for shortening cornbread.

To Sharpen Needle.
When the sewing machine needle becomes dull, stitch for several inches through a piece of fine sandpaper.

Odd Ends Useful.
Take the odd ends of salt pork and bacon that are left after slicing and add them to peas or beans for soup.

Menus for a Family Tested by SISTER MARY

Breakfast—Halves of grapefruit, cooked whole wheat cereal, liver and bacon, creamed potatoes, toasted corn muffins, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—Cream of lima bean soup, croutons, peach salad, graham bread and butter sandwiches, milk, tea.

Dinner—Baked fish, shoe string potatoes, baked squash, cabbage and pepper salad, whole wheat bread and butter, lemon jelly cake, milk, coffee.

Of course a child under school age should not be allowed to eat liver, but he may have some bacon and potatoes with his cereal and toasted muffins and milk. He should be given from four to six tablespoons of grapefruit juice at least half an hour before he eats his breakfast. The juice may be slightly sweetened.

Neither will a child of four or five eat the shoe string potatoes for his dinner. But the fish, squash, a little very finely minced cabbage seasoned with lemon juice, whole wheat bread and butter, small pieces of cake and milk furnish an ample dinner for him.

He may eat some of the peach salad for his luncheon if the nuts are used sparingly in his serving.

French Salad.
Four large peaches, 1 package
Neufchatel cheese, one-third cup shredded almonds, 4 tablespoons French dressing, 1/2 cup whipping cream.

Pare peaches and cut in halves. Remove stones. Fill cavity with cheese.
Put peach on a bed of lettuce hearts.
Make a French dressing, using lemon juice in place of vinegar. Whip cream until stiff and add to dressing.

Mask peach with dressing and sprinkle with almonds. Cottage cheese can be used in place of Neufchatel and is more desirable for children. The whipped cream dressing must be served as soon as made.

Lemon Jelly Cake.
One-half cup butter, 2 cups granulated sugar, 3 eggs, 3 cups flour, one cup milk, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon lemon extract, 1/4 teaspoon salt.

Cream butter and slowly beat in sugar. Sift in 1/2 cup of the flour and beat smooth. Add eggs well beaten.
Beat well. Mix and sift flour, baking powder and salt. Add alternately with milk to mixture. Add flavoring and turn into four layer cake tins. Bake 20 minutes in a moderate oven. Put together with lemon jelly.

FASHIONS—
The short slim silhouette is giving way to one with greater fullness about the feet, that is introduced by a bias fold or straight ruffles.

Ivory white is much more flattering to the average woman than pure white, and is much preferred for frocks. The newest evening gowns have a pinkish glow to them, though they are called white.

The shoulder cape, a direct Directoire influence, is noticed on many of the newest winter coats.

One of the most approved trimmings of this season is that long tasseled, which is decorative and intriguing but does not suggest ornateness.

One sees very few white kid gloves
on the well-dressed woman today,
those of beige or gray being infinitely better style.

A suit of unusual elegance and beauty is of white kasha cloth, banded with sable.

There is a new imitation chinchilla this season that is very successful and gives a very rich and furry appearance. On black velvet it is superb.

Jade beads and earrings are very popular.

Supper at Gottle's Barn Hall Enjoyed

The ladies who are members of the South Dixon Community club have reason to be proud of the success of their supper and program which followed last evening at Gottle's Barn Hall. People arrived from near and far to enjoy the supper.

The chicken supper was served to about two hundred and fifty persons and was a most appetizing repast.
The ladies are rejoicing today for their funds in the coffers were increased to the sum of about $170.

A program and candy sale and a highly enjoyable Old Fashioned Style Show combined in making excellent entertainment following the supper.

Rev. Prentiss Hovey, popular pastor of the First Presbyterian church in Dixon, gave a talk on "Radicalism," and in commendation of President Coolidge, his talk being greatly enjoyed.

The program, the Style Show and Pageant were also fine features of entertainment and everyone felt repaid for attending.

Miss Gail Pine was given the handsome quilt.

The money made at the supper and program will be used in works of charity. Every member of the South Dixon Community club worked hard for the success of the event and deserves credit. Mrs. J. C. Wadsworth is the president of the organization.

OFFICERS STATE D. A. R.
ENTERTAINED—
The local chapter Daughters of the American Revolution, entertained their state officers and the regents from chapters in Freeport, Rockford, Belvidere, Dixon and Morrison with a luncheon at the Lincoln Tavern on Saturday. Many other visiting daughters were also present.

A regents' round table conference was held during the morning at the Y. W. C. A. The state regent, Mrs.
Charles E. Herrick, of Chicago, presided. The meeting proved to be a valuable school of instruction for the

The picturesque sleeves are the most noticeable feature of this brown moire frock. They are of pleated chif-fon a few shades lighter than the dress. The chiffron is also introduced in the under panel and the scarf that is a part of the outfit. Two very large buttons of brown composition serve as a trimming and also a fastening.
This is a very charming outfit for attention tea or the matinee.

Mrs. Effie King of Chicago, National President of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, who was elected at the recent convention held at Atlantic City, N. J., will make her first official visit to

Members of the Dixon Auxiliary and Post have been invited to attend the meeting. The business sessions of the Auxiliary and Post will be held separately after which there will be a social hour which will be a joint affair. Refreshments will be served.

The Westminster Guild in Meeting

The Westminster Guild of the Presbyterian church was most delightfully entertained by Mrs. Hall at her apartment at the Colony last evening.

After the usual business session
Miss Ruth Morris reviewed a chapter on "The Southern Mountaineers," the Guild study book for this year, in a most interesting and instructive manner.

After the study period a social hour was enjoyed and delightful refreshments were served by the hostess.

Plans were made for a winter reception this coming Thursday evening at the Manse.

During the business session the resignation of Mrs. S. W. Lehman as patroness was presented and Mrs. W. D.
Craig was asked to fill vacancy thus created. Mrs. Craig graciously accepted and will be joint patroness with Mrs. P. H. Case.

president.

DEMS ARE GETTING MAD.

It is quite apparent that the leaders of Democratic party in Illinois has enough foresight to plainly distinguish the defeat that is only about three weeks away, for they are already consumed with the bitterness of the poor loser and in desperation they seek any weapon, fair or foul, to hurl in their impotent fury at the oncoming disaster.

Judge Jones, the Democratic candidate for governor was in Dixon Monday night pleading for Republican votes. We presume he needs them to replace the thousands of Democrats who will vote for Governor Small next month. While here Judge Jones, who is a Circuit Court judge, failed to announce his resignation from the bench. He is appearing before us as being very sweet and pure. He is filled with horror and indignation at Republican iniquity in politics, but just the same he has an ace in the hole. He is noble and high minded, but this idealism of the Judge's has not caused him to lose all of his business sense. He has not resigned his position on the bench. He is willing enough to mix politics with the judiciary.

According to the Judge, he traveled around this district all day without finding out whether the editor of The Telegraph was connected with the state administration. He said so himself. But that statement sounds fishy because he traveled all day with the Hon. John P. Devine of Dixon, manager of the Democratic state campaign, and The Telegraph editor's job with the state administration was all John was thinking about. At least it was the keynote of John's speech and it seemed to throw him into an apoplectic rage. Probably John could bear the burden of our hideous crime a little easier if Judge Jones could be elected so that a good, deserving Democrat could have the job.

The Democratic method of campaigning suffers when compared to the Republican meeting held in Dixon the other night. They are out and they want to get in and the whole program seems to be one of abuse and mud-slinging. Judge Jones announced when he started his speech that he did not intend to slander anyone, but he either forgot his speech or his intentions went wrong because that was about all he did do.

We are glad that Judge Jones came to Dixon and that a good sized crowd heard him talk. The free publicity given his meeting in The Telegraph helped to swell his crowd and there was no charge made for this publicity, in spite of the imputations voiced at the meeting regarding the editor's alleged eagerness for the dollar.

Len Small was nominated in spite of and because of the very sort of false and abusive campaigning now being carried on. False slander will not prevail over right. Governor Small was made the nominee of the Republican party by the biggest vote ever given a Governor in a primary in this state. He will be elected next month by a tremendous majority, and the Democrats know it and that's what is making them so darn mad.

CHINA.

In Chinese movies, instead of passing ice water, patrons are handed steaming hot towels by ushers for wiping faces and hands. An interpreter, standing near the screen, explains the captions and situation in Chinese. Returned travelers say the Chinks like comics and action pictures, especially Wild West. They are bored by love scenes, triangle plots, sex entanglements.

As we come increasingly into economic contact with the orient, we'll observe that the yellow race has about as much emotion as a pail of putty. China is an old man, America a youth.

QUEER.

To win bets, there is no limit to man's foolishness. A Dutchman passes through Paris, traveling 15,000 kilometers by turning somersaults. He started last November and expects to finish the trip early next year.

Why ever consider life dull when there is plenty of World Vaudeville like this? Half the world are squirrels. . . .

Nick jumped off his sea-horse and knocked at the front door.

The Sand Man, Captain Pennywinkle and the Twins rode away on their sea-horses.

All around them everywhere the electric fishes made the water as bright as day.

If the Twins had not been so worried about getting the lost sleepy sand, they would have noticed that under the sea there are as beautiful gardens of sea-flowers as there are on the earth. Flowers of every color were there.

But who has time to think of anything when babies all over the world are yawning their heads off nearly long after moon-up, and no Sand Man or single grain of sleepy sand to put them to sleep.

By and by they came to Davy Jones' locker.

Davy Jones is the gentleman who lives at the bottom of the sea.

He has built himself a fine big palace out of wrecked ships, so he will have a place to entertain lost sailors who come there to visit. He is so rich that his gold would make even Captain Kidd look as poor as little black Sambo.

Nick jumped off his sea-horse and knocked at the front door.

But nobody came.

Then he knocked some more. But still nobody came.

"That's queer!" said Captain Pennywinkle. "I was talking to Davy Jones just before you came. I wonder what's wrong."

He jumped off his sea-horse and the Sand Man and Nancy jumped off their sea-horses, and they all went right in, because the front door happened to be unlocked.

There sat Davy Jones at his supper, fast asleep. And his cook was fast asleep. And his butler was fast asleep and his pet dogfish and catfish were sound asleep.

"Ah, ha!" said Captain Pennywinkle. "I smell a mouse. I mean I smell a minnow, for there aren't any mouses. I mean mices—I mean mice in the sea."

"What do you smell a minnow for?" asked Nancy.

"Because I have an idea," said Captain Pennywinkle. "What for is Mister Davy Jones fast asleep when he is eating his dinner? And what for is everybody else asleep? Because somebody has played a joke. Your friend Pinchnose has been here."

"Twiceknose!" said the Sand Man, "and he isn't our friend, sir, either!"

"My mistake!" said Captain Pennywinkle. "But what's the difference what his name is as long as he has been here and gone?"

"That's so," said the Sand Man sadly. "Gone and the sleepy sand with him. But not all of it."

"Ho, hum!" yawned Mister Jones just then, as he woke and stretched.

"I do declare, but that soup made me sleepy. Why, hello everybody! I didn't know we had company."

And then Captain Pennywinkle told him all about everything.

"Ha, ha, ha!" laughed Davy Jones. "Stole the sleepy sand, did he? Just to keep the babies awake all night! Well, I'll soon fix that. I'll send out my magic anchor and if he is in the sea at all, we'll catch him in two minutes."

POWER OF CONCENTRATION

BY EVANGELINE WEED,
Director of Personality Institute,
Boston.

Continuing our discussion of the power of the subconscious mind, and its effect upon one's self-confidence and self-consciousness, today's lesson will consider the power of concentration, its effect on one's ambition.

Know what you desire to become.

Do not let the achievements of others deter you, discourage you.

Concentrate on your own ambitions, desires. Your subconscious mind, responding to concentration, stirs confidence in yourself; thus with confidence, granted you have the ability to perform your chosen task, there is nothing to stand between you and achievement.

The best test of this mental power may be had in personality.

Convince yourself that yours is a charming personality.

Of course, you cannot convince yourself of that unless you see in yourself proof of it. If you cannot see things required for good personality then you can acquire them. These lessons have pointed to the important qualities of personality. You know what they are. You need but fetch them.

The amount of ability you have will be determined by the persistent way you will go about to set your environment and conditions right.

The average person fails because he persists in living in the consciousness of his imperfections.

No, do not overlook your imperfections; but live on your perfection—why not live on the sunny side of the street?

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

The heart is deceitful above all things, and desperately wicked.—Jer. 17:9.

Of all the evil spirits abroad at this hour in the world, insincerity is the most dangerous.—Froude.

Cut fish should have flesh of a firm appearance and a close grain.

A THEFT

The pretty girl sat on his knee.

"Ethel," he said, "you have your father's blue eyes."

"Go on," she laughed, "don't be silly."

"But you have, dear. And you have your mother's golden hair."

Then she clapped a hand over his mouth and whispered in his ear:

"Ssh! Don't speak so loud, John; she doesn't know I'm wearing it."

PATIENTS SEEK WARRANTS FOR ROCKFORD "DOC"

Dr. Williams of Ozone Clinic is Charged with Fraud.

Charging that they were defrauded, several Rockford patients of Dr. Williams R. Williams, manager of the "Williams Ozone Medical Clinic," which occupies offices on the upper floor at 315 West State street, today obtained a warrant for the physician's arrest.

Williams, who disappeared after closing his clinic several days ago, is formally charged with operating a confidence game.

"Took Money from Victims." His victims, most of them patients at the municipal sanitarium claim they visited his office and were informed by Dr. Williams that they were not suffering with tuberculosis but from other maladies which would yield to his treatment.

Various sums of money were obtained from the tuberculosis sufferers, at least one of the victims paying Dr. Williams $100, according to evidence furnished to the State's Attorney.

When he found the "clinic" closed and no trace of the "doctor," several of the patients obtained a warrant for Williams' arrest as a confidence man. Police are hunting the absent "physician."

Ultra-Violet Rays are Health-Giving

Orono, Maine.—The health giving effect of artificial sunlight, or ultra-violet rays obtained by use of a fused quartz mercury vapor arc lamp, has been demonstrated at the University of Maine by President C. C. Little of the University and Dr. W. T. Bowie, professor at the Harvard Medical School, who have been conducting experiments with chicks.

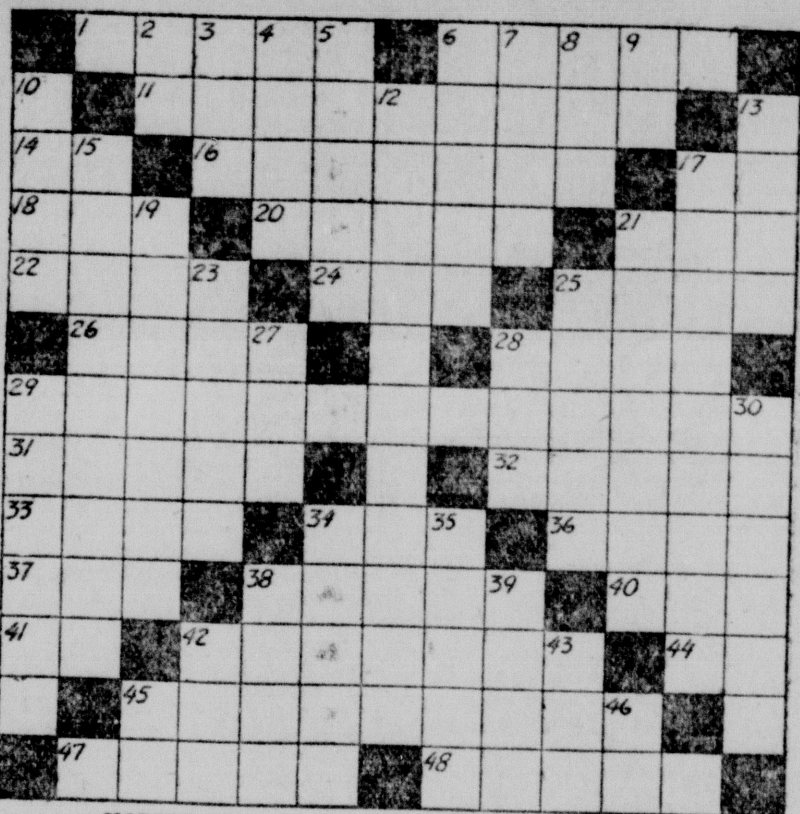

The findings of these scientists announced today, show important medical properties of such light, not only in the raising of chicks but in the prevention of diseases of children, especially rickets.

Experiments conducted on a brood of pedigree chicks have indicated not only that larger and stronger chicks can be raised under the artificial sunlight but that chicks raised under natural sunlight filtered through ordinary window glass developed weak legs or rickets, weighed but one fifth as much as the others and died unless a change in living conditions was made. Ordinary window glass is opaque to the sun's ultra-violet rays, Dr. Bowie said the same principle would apply to children.

Murder Charge Against Army Captain Dismissed

By Associated Press Leased Wire

Tacoma, Wash., Oct. 15.—Robert Rosenbluth, former captain in the 213 the engineers who was jointly charged with Roland Pothier with the murder of Major Alexander Cronkhite at Camp Lewis in 1918, was freed today of accusation in connection with the case. The indictment against him was dismissed late yesterday by Federal Judge Cushman here on motion of J. W. Osborne, special prosecutor.

Dismissal of the case against Rosenbluth is the outgrowth of the acquittal last week of Pothier.

Pothier has gone to join his family in Central Falls, R. I., funds for the trip having been provided by the American Legion. Rosenbluth expects to leave soon for his home in New York.

Appeals to Kiwanians

Earl Buck of Franklin Grove yesterday addressed the Dixon Kiwanis club on the subject, "The economical aspects of the St. Lawrence seaway as it affects agriculture." The talk was interesting and educational, the speaker explaining many of the points that are a subject of debate not only in the United States but in Canada as well.

Mrs. J. N. Batchelder, W. C. Durkes and Harry Roe appeared before the club and sought financial aid for the community nurse fund, which they stated was exhausted and in order to maintain this very important service in Dixon, would require the support of business men and the people of the city. Each of the ladies explained briefly the work which this department has accomplished in Dixon and the importance of retaining the office. President Kline referred the matter to the Sunshine committee of the club, of which Ed Valle is chairman.

New York—The biggest civic problem in New York is that of its traffic. Yet in 1872 there was a wooden, overhead bridge at Broadway and traffic in Broadway was so congested that people could not cross the street. There were no traffic policemen in those days.

"But the women were more modest," a gentleman of those times recalls. "They would not use the bridge because they feared an inch of their well-covered ankles would show when they walked up the steps. They waited to cross the street rather than be immodest in climbing the stairs."

"The girls of today would welcome the excuse to display trim, silken-clad limbs," he declared. "And it is possible that a few overhead bridges might alleviate the traffic congestion today."

She is of the demi-monde of New York, known as the friend of a millionaire manufacturer, who rose from penury to great wealth almost in the twinkling of an eye.

She clung to him in dismal days. He always promised that "when he made his pile" she would have the luxuries of a queen.

He is one of few men, in such cases, who really kept his promise.

In regal splendor, with many servants, she lives in a lavish apartment. She had few intimates and seldom goes out.

With all she has, she is always sorrowful, brooding. She is an habitual alcoholic. Her days are numbered, and the bloom of youth has faded.

Just as he could have begun to enjoy himself, I am told, her son—the child of an early and unhappy marriage—learned the truth about his mother and has since refused to visit her.

Two wealthy young women from Brazil have opened a fashionable coffee house, just off aristocratic Fifth Avenue, where coffee, prepared after their native fashion, is given away free.

The story goes that Beatriz Souza, Quirros and Albina Frias, came to New York on an extended visit. They were not satisfied with New York's coffee, so they sent to their native land for a supply. Then they saw is roasted, after the fashion that pleased them, and brewed to suit their taste.

Friends, served with the brew, urged them to open a coffee house that the public might enjoy a "cup of good coffee." After several months the wealthy girls did.

Now their place is a mecca for coffee drinkers, but the drinks are "on the house."

New York—Avisors flying over New York henceforth will have a view of the biggest machine in the world.

Every street from Central Park to Bowling Green will have one-way traffic. It is planned to synchronize movements of traffic so that automobiles and trucks on all east and west streets will move at the same time. When that traffic stops movement will start on all north and south streets.

The bird's-eye view will be that of an immense loom, with human threads weaving the pattern. There is probably no better illustration of the mechanical age in which we live than this machine-like movement of traffic in the world's largest city.

Mercantile losses in New York City due to traffic delays total more than half a billion a year, some experts placing the loss at $1,250,000 a day.

To eliminate this estimated loss every street from 59th street to Bowling Green has been made a one-way traffic street.

Inspector Dominick Henry, the city's traffic expert, accounts for the tremendous losses through delays to trucks which fail to make trains and steamer connections, to loss of wages of employees, loss of service of equipment and loss of gasoline by running motors.

One angle not figured by the traffic experts is that the great increase in the commerce of the country and this city in the past decade has been due to the auto.

Now the auto delays the auto. Is this modern wonder a Frankenstein, turned upon those it has benefited? What will New York look like ten years hence despite its one-way traffic if the number of autos continues to increase at the present rate?

What will New York's sky line and its building tops look like 50 years hence with the airplane continuing at its present development?

Lord Henry admits that the answer silenced and bewildered him, being utterly unexpected. Yet what the prisoner urged was a truth so obvious that it was difficult to apprehend how his lordship had come to overlook it. But Sir John, less perspicacious or less scrupulous in the matter, had his retort ready.

"Did you not come to Arwenack and forcibly carry off thence?"

"Nay, now, nay now," the corsair interrupted, good-humoredly. "Go back to school, Sir John, to learn that abduction is not piracy."

"Call it abduction, if you will," Sir John admitted.

"Not if I will, Sir John. We'll call it what it is, if you please."

"You are trifling, sir. But we shall mend that presently," and Sir John banged the table with his fist, his face flushing slightly in anger.

"You can not pretend to be ignorant," Sir John continued, "that abduction is punishable by death under the law of England."

He turned to his fellow-judges. "We will then, sirs, with your concurrence, say no more of the piracy."

"Faith," said Lord Henry in his gentle tones, "in justice we can not. And he shrugged the matter aside."

"The prisoner is right in what he claims. We have no jurisdiction in that matter, seeing that he committed no piracy in English waters, nor—so far as our knowledge goes—against any vessel sailing under the English flag."

Rosamund stirred. Slowly she took her elbows from the table, and folded her arms, resting them upon the edge of it. Thus leaning forward she listened now with an odd brightness in her eye, a slight flush in her cheeks reflecting some odd excitement called into life by Lord Henry's admission—an admission which sensibly whittled down the charges against the prisoner.

Sir Oliver, watching her almost furtively, noted this and marvelled, even as he marvelled at her general composure. It was in vain that he sought to guess what might be her attitude of mind towards himself now that she was safe again among friends and protectors. But Sir John, intent only upon the business ahead, plunged angrily on.

"Be it so," he admitted impatiently, "we will deal with him upon the counts of abduction and murder. Have you anything to say?"

"Nothing that would be like to weigh with you," replied Sir Oliver. And then with a sudden change from his slightly derisive manner to one that was charged with passion:

"Let us make an end of this comedy," he cried; "of this pretense of judicial proceedings. Hang me, and have done, or set me to walk the plank. Play the pirate, for that is a trade you understand. But a God's name don't disgrace the queen's commission by playing the judge."

Sir John leaped to his feet, his face aflame.

"Now, by heaven, you insolent knave!"

But Lord Henry checked him, placing a restraining hand upon his sleeve, and forcing him gently back into his seat. Himself he now addressed the prisoner.

"Sir, your words are unworthy one who, whatever his crimes, has earned the reputation of being a sturdy, valiant fighter. Your deeds are so notorious—particularly that which caused you to flee from England and take to roving and that of your reappearance at Arwenack and the abduction of which you were then guilty—that your sentence in an English court is a matter foregone beyond all possible doubt. Nevertheless, it shall be yours, as I have said, for the asking."

"Yet," he added, and his voice was lowered and very earnest, "were I your friend, Sir Oliver, I would advise you that you rather choose to be dealt with in the summary fashion of the sea."

"Sirs," replied Sir Oliver, "your right to hang me I have not disputed, nor do I have any more to say."

"But I have."

Thus Rosamund at last, startling the court with her crisp, sharp utterance. All turned to look at her as she rose, and stood tall and compelling at the table's end.

"Rosamund!" cried Sir John, and rose in his turn. "Let me implore you—"

She waved him peremptorily, almost contemptuously, into silence.

"Since in this matter of the abduction with which Sir Oliver is charged," she said, "I am the person said to have been abducted, it were perhaps well that before going further in this matter you should hear what I may hereafter have to say in an English court."

Sir John shrugged, and sat down again. She would have her way, he realized, just as he knew that the only result could be to waste their time and protract the agony of the doomed man.

Lord Henry turned to her, his manner full of deference.

"Since the prisoner has not denied the charge, and since wisely he refrains from demanding to be taken to trial, we need not harass you, Mistress Rosamund. Nor will you be called upon to say anything in an English court."

"There you are at fault, my lord," she answered, her voice very level. "I shall be called upon to say something when I impeach you all for murder upon the high seas, as impeach you I shall if you persist in your intent."

"Rosamund!" cried Oliver in his sudden amazement—and it was a cry of joy and exultation.

She looked at him, and smiled—a smile full of courage and friendliness and something more, a smile for which he considered that his impending hanging was but a little price to pay. Then she turned again to that court, into which her words had flung a sudden consternation.

"Since he disdains to deny the accusation, I must deny it for him," she informed them. "He did not abduct me, sirs, as is alleged. I love Oliver Tressilian. I am of full age and mistress of my actions, and I went willingly with him to Algiers where I became his wife."

Had she flung a bomb amongst them she could hardly have made a greater disorder of their wits. They sat back, and stared at her with blank faces, muttering incoherently.

"His—his wife?" babbled Lord Henry. "You became his—"

And then Sir John cut in fiercely: "A lie! A lie to save that foul villain's neck!"

Rosamund leaned toward him, and her smile was almost a sneer.

"Your wits were ever sluggish, Sir John," she said, "else you would not need reminding that I could have no object in lying to save him if he had done me the wrong that is imputed to him."

Then she looked at the others.

"I think, sirs, that in this matter my word will outweigh Sir John's or any man's in any court of justice."

"Faith, that's true enough!" ejaculated the bewildered Lord Henry. "A moment, Killigrew!"

And again he stifled the impetuous Sir John. He looked at Sir Oliver, who in truth was very far from being the least bewildered in that company.

"What do you say to that, sir?" he asked.

"To that?" echoed the almost speechless corsair.

"What is there left to say?" he evaded.

"'Tis all false," cried Sir John again. "We were witnesses of the event—you and I, Harry—and we saw—"

"You saw," Rosamund interrupted. "But you did not know what had been concerted."

For a moment that silenced them again. They were as men who stand upon crumbling ground, whose every effort to win to a safer footing but occasions a fresh slide of soil. Then Sir John sneered, and made his riposte.

"No doubt she will be prepared to swear that her betrothed, Master Lionel Tressilian, accompanied her willingly upon that elopement."

"No," she answered. "As for Lionel Tressilian he was carried off that he might expropriate his sins which he had fathered upon his brother there, sins which are the subject of your other point against him."

"Now what can you mean by that?" asked his lordship.

"That the story that Sir Oliver killed my brother is a calumny; that the murderer was Lionel Tressilian, who, to avoid detection and to complete his work, caused Sir Oliver to be kidnapped that he might be sold into slavery."

"This is too much!" roared Sir John. "She is trifling with us, she makes white black and black white. She has been bewitched by that crafty rogue, by Moorish arts that—"

"Wait!" said Lord Henry, raising his hand. "Give me leave."

He confronted her very seriously. "This—is this a grave statement, mistress. Have you any proof—anything that you conceive to be a proof—of what you are saying?"

But Sir John was not to be reassured.

"'Tis but the lying tale this villain told her. He has bewitched her, I say. 'Tis plain as the sunlight yonder."

Sir Oliver laughed outright at that. His mood was growing exultant, buoyant, and joyous, and this was the first expression of it. "Bewitched her? You're determined never to lack for a charge. First 'twas piracy, then abduction and murder, and now 'tis witchcraft!"

HORTICULTURISTS IN MEETING FRIDAY AT PRAIRIEVILLE CH.

Austin Powers and Thos. Keithley, Jr., Spoke to R. R. Valley, Soc.

The Rock River Valley Horticultural society met at the Prairieville church Friday for its annual autumn meeting. Although the day was very favorable the attendance was comparatively small. Following the picnic dinner the annual business meeting and election of officers occurred. All the old officers being returned for another year. Two members of the society who had recently attended conventions or fairs gave their impressions of what they had seen especially as it related to horticulture.

Austin Powers was the first speaker and he gave a report of the principal features of the Illinois State Fair which he thought would interest his audience. The exhibit of the fruit and especially the apples at the State fair was the largest ever known in this state. There were on display about 236 bushel boxes, each containing two layers of apples, 90 bushel baskets, five barrels and three large tables each about 100 feet long, which were completely filled with plate exhibits of apples, pears and grapes, mostly the former. Mr. Powers estimated the total display of apples at 150 bushels. In addition to these many fine apples were shown as part of county displays. There were also extensive exhibits of vegetables and grain. The display of corn was very limited due to the late season.

Dairy Exhibit
The dairy exhibit was extensive. Exhibits of honey and bees occupied a large space. The stock show was very large; the hog and sheep buildings, which cover three acres were all filled, and other stock and poultry was entered in large numbers. On the particular day on which Mr. Powers was present, Governors day, it was estimated that there were 65,000 people on the grounds.

Thomas Keithley, Jr., of Dixon, gave a very interesting talk on his impressions of the annual convention of the Vegetable Growers Association of America, which was held this year at Louisville, Ky. This association is composed of commercial growers from all parts of the United States. At this meeting 28 states and the Dominion of Canada were represented. The principal purpose of the meeting was the further organizing of the vegetable growers for the advancement of the industry in many ways. The keynote of the gathering was cooperation which is now recognized as a necessity in all lines of agriculture.

"Vegetables for Vitamins"
Accompanying this convention was a large trade exhibit consisting of spraying and dusting equipment, plant setting machinery, garden tractors, etc. There was a large exhibit of vegetables. Various universities had exhibits by their departments of horticulture setting forth the food values of various vegetables. The vegetable growers have adopted the slogan, "Vegetables for Vitamins," which will probably become as widely known as "Say it with Flowers" of the florists. One of the interesting features of the convention was a field trip occupying nearly an entire day. The extensive gardening sections of Louisville were visited and potatoes were found to be an important crop. Two crops of potatoes are often grown on the same ground in a year, the second crop being grown from seed kept in cold storage.

Labor-Saving Machinery

The demonstration of labor-saving machinery, especially garden tractors was interesting. Mr. Keithley is of the opinion that the garden tractor is practical where there is a large amount of work to be done by man power; but where a horse can be used, the garden tractor might not be so good. A number of the men attending the convention had a very interesting experience when they visited the famous Mammoth Cave about a hundred miles from Louisville. This cave is situated under timber land. It has 250 miles of explored passage ways. Going over the Echo river route the party descended 160 feet to Echo river, a subterranean stream, 25 or 30 feet across, on which boats carrying several passengers are used. These underground streams are rich in nitrogen. During the war of 1812, when the supply of nitrates for making gun powder became nearly exhausted, part of the nitrates for this purpose was secured from the Mammoth Cave. Some of the vats used in extracting nitrogen from the water are still to be seen in the cave.

Mr. Keithley's talk was of great interest to the audience. The program was closed with a song by the audience, and the society adjourned until the next meeting in February.

LETTER FROM JOHN ALDEN PRESCOTT TO MRS. SALLY ATHERTON, CONTINUED

In addition to the sentimental side of the proposition, my dear Mrs. Atherton, Mr. Hamilton's request opens up to me the most ambitious opportunity I probably would ever have offered me—and, when opportunity knocks at the door one must surely open. The very thought of working onward and upward to the success which I shall try to make gives me a stupendous thrill.

In this you can fully sympathize with me, for you and I have thrived together in the putting over of many smaller enterprises, and I hope you will have the same feeling of great enthusiasm over this new business that I have. I shall of course expect you to come over here with me. Indeed, I would hardly know how to do the things I want to without your help.

You will have entire charge of the advertising and publicity end of the plant, and when my salary commences, your salary will automatically be put at fifteen thousand dollars a year.

I shall probably stay here until all is over. There will be much to be arranged, but I know my business at home is in good hands.

Will you please read as much of this letter as you care to to Mr.

Bullock when you hand him the enclosed letter of resignation.

Sincerely,
John Alden Prescott.

Letter From John Alden Prescott to President Bullock of the Acme Advertising Co.

My Dear Mr. Bullock: It is probable that this letter of resignation will be quite as much of a surprise to you as it was to me, but I find the affair of my father-in-law in such shape at the immediate prospect of his death, that I have accepted his request that I become sole executor to his will and manager of the steel plant in his stead.

You can readily see that even if this were not a special opportunity for me, it would be an imperative duty.

Will you let me say that in the years we have been together I have learned from you the most upright and splendid of business methods, and if I do amount to anything in my new position, it will be because of your fine example.

I cannot tell just when I will be back, as Mr. Hamilton seems to depend upon me so greatly, and he feels there is so much to be decided before he passes on.

His attitude in this inevitable situation is one of great interest to me. If, when the time comes that I shall lay down this earthly life, I shall face the great unknown with the same brave equanimity as does my wife's father, I shall feel my life has not been spent in vain.

Mrs. Atherton will give you all the details, and she will also close up the business in such a way that it can easily be turned over to another.

I feel that in the future you can go along much better without me than can without you, but just now this is the duty that lies nearest, and such it must be done.

Sincerely,
JOHN ALDEN PRESCOTT

Fall Reunion of Consistory to Be Held in Freeport

The annual fall reunion of the Freeport Consistory will be a two day event this year instead of a three day session as has been the custom. This year the meeting will be held on Tuesday and Wednesday, November 18 and 19, and in the large class who will take the work are a number of Sterling Masons. Petitions from Dixon, DeKalb, Rockford, Stockton and other places in the jurisdiction. The greater part of the work will be conferred by the members of the Freeport Consistory, the work to start at 10 o'clock on the opening day with the conferring of the fourth degree under the direction of James A. Provost, thirty-third degree elect. Work will continue throughout the day and the evening session will be taken up with the conferring of the fifteenth and sixteenth degrees. The thirty second will be conferred during the evening of the closing day of the ceremonial. At 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, the patriotic twelfth degree which always draws a large attendance will be exemplified. This degree is considered one of the most impressive in the Scottish Rite. It is a most vivid portrayal of an historical event, with the addition of a decidedly personal touch in the theme of the degree.

The WELL DRESSED MAN
By BEAUNASH
Correct Clothes To Meet The Obligation Of Every Occasion

How Sportsmen Dress

Pointing the circle, or squaring the triangle, or rounding the pyramid is as easy as recommending sporting clothes that will please every man. We all have different notions about this, based upon widely separated preferences. Some men like to dress lightly afield, keeping warm through exercise. Others require garments of weight and warmth to ward off chills. Both are right. It amounts to five times six and six times five. Certainly, the only way to determine what you feel most comfortable in is by experience.

Dress for sport and country is not upon the same plane as dress for town and function. The rules are not so hard-and-fast. Fashion recognizes that, above all, the sportsman must feel wholly at ease and that the game is more important than the get-up. Anything which is uncomfortable immediately becomes unfashionable. You cannot keep your mind on your score if it's on your clothes.

Periodical attempts are made to have men's sporting outfits uniform in character, but these always failed. You cannot standardize the sportsman. If he is worth his salt, he will "gang his ain gait," as the Scotch put it, regardless of rigid regulations. Therefore, do not feel uneasy about the propriety of your field dress. See that it is comfortable first and correct afterward. Make certain that it is free-draping, not tight-fitting, and cut of loosely woven woollens, such as tweeds, homespuns and hopsackings. While town clothes may trace the figure as much or as little as you like, sporting clothes must grant unhindered ease, from undersuit to outer suit.

Flannel shirts, of the type reproduced here, are excellent for the sportsman. This cloth, recently revived in vogue, is remarkably soft, absorbent and durable. It is made with collar to match, and often has a left breast pocket with buttoned flap. Instead of the French double cuffs, single sport-wrist buttoned sleeves may be chosen.

The most popular show with the most popular prices is "Abie's Irish Rose," now nearing its 400th performance at the Studebaker theater in Chicago. Now comes the announcement that these same low tariffs will remain in force indefinitely, possibly throughout the entire winter.

The second season for "Abie" opened on Labor Day. At the matinee every seat was sold, and as a matter of record, mostly to out-of-town patrons who are accustomed to finding the Studebaker living up to all its ad-

The Affair at Flower Acres
by CAROLYN WELLS

BEGIN HERE

Malcolm Finley, returning from Japan, is invited to Flower Acres, the Long Island home of Douglas Raynor, husband of Nancy, who is a former sweetheart of Finley's. Finley discovers that Raynor is tyrannizing over Nancy and is incensed. At Flower Acres are Ezra Goddard, friend of Finley; Nancy, her devoted brother, Orville Kent, Douglas Raynor, Raynor's sister, Miss Mattie, and others. Finley realizes that he is regarded with suspicion by Raynor and Miss Mattie because of his old love affair with Nancy. This—and the constant abuse Raynor heaps upon his wife—anger Finley extremely. Raynor overhears a conversation between Finley and Nancy and orders Finley to leave the house. "I promise that if you will remove your presence I will at once transform myself into the most gentle, loving and kind-tempered of husbands," he sneers.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"You can never say another word to me, of any sort whatever!" And in a fury Finley left them.

He was sure he had made a fool of himself. Sure he had harmed Nan rather than helped her.

Finley went to his room, but he did not at once begin to pack his things. He sat down by a window and gazed out over the flowers, to the sea and sky, and let his thoughts grow calmer and more practical.

Was there no way he could help Nan? No task would be too hard, no service too difficult, if he could but make up for the trouble and annoyance he had caused her.

For he had small doubt but that Raynor would wreak on his wife the anger he must feel toward himself Finley.

A long time he thought and sighed as he pondered.

And then, instead of packing his kit and starting for the train, he bathed and dressed and presented himself on the western terrace just as tea was being brought there.

Finley did not look at his host or speak to him, but as there were present most of the family, and a few neighbors, this omission was not noticed.

"Oh, yes, then you may," she bounded. "After I pass the bunce we'll talk it over."

Finley had seated himself, not near Nan, but where he could watch her. In fact, he was beside Miss Mattie, who was more than ready to entertain him.

And it was during one of her long and rambling discourses that Finley, watching Nan, again saw that quick, furtive motion as of dropping something in Raynor's tea-cup.

"Sacharine, sure," he thought.

"She can fool him then," he thought. "But seems to me she could fool him oftener and better than she does."

Too over, they lingered on the terrace. Another gorgeous sunset was under way.

"Rarely does that old sun get a chance to sink to rest in such a bad of beauty," said Eva Turner, who was always loquacious at tea time.

"There she goes!" cried Dolly, as the last of the great flaming disk dropped out of sight. "And I must go, too, or mother will blow me up sky-high. Who'll walk to the bridge with me?"

"I will," said Orry, who was a born cavalier, and likewise fond of gay little Dolly.

But they tarried until the other guests had taken leave, and then, as they sauntered across the lawn, down toward the bridge over the tiny brook that separated the two estates, the sinister dusk was creeping in from the darkening horizon.

"I'm jealous of your other Prince," Kent bantered, and Dolly said, seriously, "He isn't really mine, he's Nan's."

"Nonsense! What has Nan to do with Prince?"

"Oh, it doesn't matter that she's married to that old hobgoblin. I mean that can't stop her loving her Prince."

"Don't, Dolly; it isn't nice for a little girl to say things like that."

"Nice or not—it's true talk. You see, Nan ought to have married Mr. Finley in the first place."

"Hush, Dolly," Kent spoke sternly. "Nan's my sister, and I forbid you to gossip about her."

"All right, Orry, I won't. Miss Mattie isn't your sister, is she? May I talk about her?"

"Yes, if you like," and the young man smiled.

"Well, she's a meddlesome Mattie. What do you s'pose she's doing now? She's looking down here at us."

The two were on the bridge now, the little rustic affair that added picturesqueness to the scene. Dolly had turned and was looking back toward the house.

"What sharp eyes you have,"

ON THE FLOOR LAY HER BROTHER IN AN UNGAINLY HEAP, NEAR HIM STOOD FINLEY.

Kent said, looking, too. "I can scarcely see her. The dark comes quickly."

"Yes," Dolly looked at her wrist watch. "It's seven o'clock. I must run. Goodbye, Orry."

"Goodbye," Kent said, looking at his own watch, and starting off to ward the house.

Meddlesome Mattie had been looking out her window at the two strolling across the lawn, but there was no more to it than idle curiosity. It was her habit to watch everything and everybody, in hope of learning something she was not meant to know.

From her own room, with the windows all open, she had heard her brother leave the terrace and go into the sun parlor—that was doubtless to avoid the dampness.

She had heard Malcolm Finley, at the same time, leave the terrace and go into the house, walking through the rear hall, and out on the east veranda. She had listened intently, but didn't hear Nan follow him—a distinct disappointment to Miss Mattie.

Mr. Goddard, she knew, was in his own room. And Eva Turner was bustling about, now in her bedroom, then on the stairs, then to the kitchen and back again—of course, intent upon her dietary duties.

Despairing of any further sounds of interest, Miss Mattie snatched up her lights and looked at her clock. It was five minutes to seven then, time to begin to dress for dinner. And then, though not listening intently, Miss Mattie's ears were startled by the sound of a single shout.

Indeed, at first she didn't recognize it as a shout. So often a supposed shout had been a blow-out or a burst fire, that now, when it was really a shot, she naturally thought it something else. For a moment no sounds followed, and then various light footsteps could be heard below. Still unthinking of tragedy, Miss Mattie stepped out into the hall, and, though hall and stairs were as yet unlighted, she felt her way to the laundry rail and started slowly down the stairs.

When half way down she could discern a white figure standing in the door between the hall and the sun parlor, but as she went on, the figure which she knew to be that of Eva Turner went through the doorway and the next instant the lights of the sun parlor were flashed on.

Miss Mattie scurried the rest of the way down and peered through the hall door into the sun room.

On the floor lay her brother in an ungainly heap, near him stood Malcolm Finley, an automatic pistol in his hand, and by the door, her hand still on the light switch, stood Eva Turner.

She was not looking at Finley, but in the opposite direction, toward the west door of the sun room.

And at that door, in another moment, appeared Nan, white-faced and terrified.

Then, as Nan stepped into the room, Orville Kent also came in from the south side, through the outside door that opened on the lawn and flower beds that ran down to the brook.

ROCHELLE BOY IS WINNER IN I. C. C. ESSAY CONTESTS

Thomas Keegan Awarded Prize for Paper on His Home Town.

Rochelle-Thomas Keegan of Rochelle, was one of the winners in the Illinois Chamber of Commerce, "Why My Home City is the Best City in Illinois" essay contest. His essay and photograph appearing in the October issue of "The Illinois Journal of Commerce."

At the opening of school in September, local Chambers of Commerce in Illinois were asked by the Illinois Journal of Commerce to arrange for an essay contest in the local high schools to compete in the state-wide contest for the best essay. Twenty-five cities entered the contest. Wm. Hudson Harper, editor of Chicago Commerce, the official publication of the Chicago Association, acted as judge and Mr. Keegan was picked as one of the ten winners.

Mr. Keegan's essay on "Why Rochelle is the Best City in Illinois" follows:

"I consider my city the best city in Illinois because of its ideal location, its commercial advantages, its excellent municipal government, its educational facilities and its living conditions."

"Rochelle is located in the heart of one of the most extensive and productive agricultural regions in the world. The Lincoln and Meridian Highways intersect at this city. Three railroads furnish good shipping facilities and a close grain market."

"This city has five schools of which the new high school is as well equipped and as thorough in its curriculum as the finest school in the state."

"Rochelle was one of the first cities to adopt commission form of government. It has a well-managed municipally owned electric light and water plant. Its manufactures are diversified and balanced. It offers all the advantages of a city while it has the ideal living conditions of the country atmosphere."

"All of these various forces of the community are developed and brought into harmony through the activity of the Chamber of Commerce. Nearly one half of the membership of this active organization is composed of farmers and it is largely through its efforts toward co-operation that makes my city the best one in which to live."

Rochelle is to have a new Methodist pastor. Rev. Landcox, of Colfax, Illinois was appointed pastor here at the Conference of the Rock River Valley held at Sterling, and Rev. Arthur Cates of this city, who has been pastor during the past year has been sent to Colfax, Illinois."

Rev. Cates has made many friends and has done fine work here the past year and it is with genuine regret that the community sees the family leave."

Rev. T. K. Gale was appointed district superintendent of the Joliet district at the conference. Among other appointments are, W. H. Evans, Ashton and Flag Center; J. A. Landis, Malta; John Dingle is returned to Morrison, Warren Hutchinson, Steward; Creston to be supplied."
